TWELFTH YEAR. NO. 278.

EAST LIVERPOOL, OHIO, MONDAY, MAY 17, 1897.

TWO CENTS.

ACTION TO BE TAKEN.

American Citizens In Cuba Will Get Relief at Once.

PLAN IS BEING PERFECTED.

The President Will Send a Message to Congress Immediately and the Starving People May Be Brought Home.

Washington, May 17.—The definite announcement was made at the capitol that a message on the Cuban situation will be sent to congress by the president immediately.

It will deal specifically with the question of the deprivations to which American citizens are subjected in Cuba, and it is understood it will recommend an appropriation for their relief.

TO BRING THEM HOME.

Americans Will Probably Be Brought Away From Cuba.

Washington, May 17.—In considering ways and means of affording substantial relief to such American citizens in Cuba as are in real distress owing to the war, the administration has hit upon a plan which may be put in operation if it is sanctioned by the judgment of its officers in Cuba, who, being on the ground, are supposed to be best qualified to judge of the efficiency of proposed measures of relief.

This plan is to give notice through the American consuls to all American citizens in Cuba that the government will undertake to remove them from the island to the United States if they so desire. To do this will require action by congress, not necessarily a specific authorization of the removal, but merely the limitation of the appropriation to the general terms of one for the relief of American citizens in Cuba.

A course similar to this was adopted with more or less benefit in China during the rioting incident to the Chinese-Japanese war, and during the Armenian troubles Mr. Terrell, the United States minister, was authorized to undertake the conveyance of American citizens to the coast cities where they might have suitable protection.

The proposition as to Cuba goes a little further than the measures adopted in the case of China or Turkey, in that it contemplates the removal of the Americans from the island entirely. Probably the reason for this is the belief founded on reports from United States Consul General Lee and other United States consular officers that the war has so thoroughly exhausted the agricultural resources of the island that it will be a long time before it will be again in condition to maintain its population, and meanwhile the Americans who are dependent upon the soil for their livelihood will suffer.

The consequent suffering can be relieved by the government's furnishing the unfortunates supplies and medicines, but General Lee takes the view that this relief must be continued probably for a long time. The proposed American exodus from Cuba must be purely voluntary, and it is not even proposed to present the alternative of denying supplies if destitute Americans refuse to leave the island.

It is simply proposed to give them an opportunity to leave the island if they believe they can better their condition in the United States.

It is the belief of General Lee that many persons will avail themselves of such an opportunity, and it is possible that his view will be adopted by the president.

Figures are not obtainable as to the number of American citizens in Cuba who are in actual distress and in need of food or clothing as the result of Weyler's order bringing them into the towns. The state department is now in correspondence with its consuls by telegraph seeking to get this information as the basis for any message the president may send to congress on the subject of relief.

But so far as officially known to the department through the reports of the consuls made up to this time the number of Americans in this condition is between 150 and 200.

GNASHING THEIR TEETH.

Spaniards Howl About Action the United States May Take.

Madrid, May 17.—The Heraldo, referring to the possible action of the United States for the relief of Americans in Cuba, says:

"The Spanish government will have universal opinion on its side if it acts with energy in repelling American interference in our affairs, but this opinion will be hostile unless the government ceases making concessions.

"These displays of weakness, if they do not increase the difficulty of solving the question, certainly do not improve the situation in Cuba."

The Correspondencia announces that the reported increase in the strength of the Spanish army was decided upon in view of the possibility of international conflicts.

RATHER SIGNIFICANT.

The White Squadron Ordered to Get Ready For Sea.

Washington, May 17.—Orders have been sent to Rear Admiral Montgomery Sicard to have his flagship, the New York, made ready to go to sea from New York at a moment's warning. She is to fill up with coal to her full capacity.

Concerning the flagship's destination nothing can be learned at the navy department, but that her departure from port has any bearing on the Cuban cause is denied.

The belief among navy officers is strong that the New York is to be held in complete readiness to go to Key West at a moment's warning.

Information From Cuba.

Philadelphia, May 17.—The president received from Secretary of State Sherman at Washington abstracts of telegrams and letters that have come to the latter from Cuba. These are said to relate largely to the subject of the distress and destitution now existing on the island. It is further stated that they confirm in great measure the information hitherto received by the president on this subject.

Recognition Urged.

Toledo, Ia., May 17.—At the United Brethren general conference a telegram was authorized to be sent to President McKinley urging him in behalf of liberty and humanity to declare in favor of a recognition of the belligerent rights of the Cuban people.

PARIS CONFLAGRATION.

Its Accidental Cause Has at Last Been Explained.

Paris, May 17.—The origin of the fire on May 4 last at the charity bazaar on the Rue Jean Goujon seems to have been established. A man named Bellac, an employee of the cinematographic booth of the fair, confessed to having accidentally caused the conflagration. Bellac explained that, finding the cinematographic lamp burning badly, he tried to fill it with ether. In order to be able to see the better he struck a match, when the vapors ignited and instantly spread to the hangings round the apparatus.

An Ex-City Official Suicides.

St. Louis, May 17.—John E. Doehring, ex-city treasurer of Belleville, Ill., hanged himself in his home in that city. His body was found by one of the members of the family and cut down just as life was extinct. He could not do so and it is thought over this situation he committed suicide.

A Butcher Suicides.

Muncie, Ind., May 17.—When Joseph Munsch's young wife brought his supper to him several customers were waiting in his Ohio avenue meat shop, but the butcher was out. Munsch came to Greenville, O.

Albany, May 17.—The state superintendent of schools decided in the Watervleit case, that the wearing of the garb of any religious order or sect can not be permitted to teachers in public schools of this state, while they are engaged in their duties as such teachers. FATHER OF THE NATION

Washington Monument Unveiled In the Quaker City.

A MOST GLORIOUS EVENT.

President McKinley Pulled the Cord Which Exposed the Shaft to View, and Also Delivered a Eulogy on the First Ruler.

Philadelphia, May 17.—Here, in the city which first placed on his brow the laurel-crown of achievement, the memory of George Washington, the soldier, the statesman and the citizen, was honored in monumental bronze. The cord which released the swaddling flags from the figure of the first ruler of the republic was drawn by its latest ruler.

The actual unveiling ceremony was impressively simple. Bishop Whittaker opened with prayer, and Major Wayne followed with an appropriate address. Then came the unveiling by President McKinley and the resultant clamor, augmented by the national salute of 21 guns by the artillery and by the foreign and American war vessels in the Delaware. This concluded, President McKinley spoke as follows:

"Fellow-Citizens: There is a peculiar and tender sentiment connected with this memorial. It expresses not only the gratitude and reverence of the living, but is a testimonial of affection and homage from the dead.

"The comrades of Washington projected this monument. Their love inspired it. Their contributions helped to build it. Past and present share in its completion, and future generations will profit by its lessons.

"To participate in the dedication of such a monument is a rare and precious privilege. Every monument to Washington is a tribute to patriotism. Every shaft and statue to his memory helps to inculcate love of country, encourage loyalty and establish a better citizenship. God bless every undertaking which revives patriotism and rebukes the indifferent and lawless.

"A critical study of Washington's career only enhances our estimation of his vast and varied abilities. As commander-in-chief of the colonial armies from the beginning of the war to the proclamation of peace, as president of the convention which framed the constitution of the United States, and as the first president of the United States under that constitution, Washington has a distinction differing from that of all other illustrious Americans.

"No other name bears or can bear such a relation to the government. Not only by his military genius, his patience, his sagacity, his courage and his skill was our national independence won, but he helped in largest measure to draft the chart by which the nation was guided; and he was the first chosen of the people to put in motion the new government.

His Foresight Was Marvelous.

"Masterful as were his military campaigns, his civil administration commands equal admiration. His foresight was marvelous; his conception of the philosophy of government, his insistence upon the necessity of education, morality and enlightened citizenship to the progress and permanence of the republic, can not be contemplated even at this period without filling us with astonishment at the breadth of his comprehension and the sweep of his vision.

"His was no narrow view of government. The immediate present was not his sole concern, but our future good his constant theme of study. He blazed the path of liberty. He laid the foundation upon which we have grown from weak and scattered colonial governments to a united republic whose domains and power, as well as whose liberty and freedom, have become

The Admiration of the World.

"Distance and time have not detracted from the fame and force of his achievements or diminished the grandeur of his life and work. Great deeds do not stop in their growth, and those of Washington will expand in influence in all the centuries to follow. The bequest Washington made to civilization is rich beyond computation.

"The obligations under which he has placed mankind are sacred and commanding. The responsibility he has left for the American people to preserve and perfect what he accomplished is exacting and solemn. Let us rejoice in every new evidence that the people realize what they enjoy and cherish with affection the illustrious whose valor and sacrifices made a nation. They live in us, and their memory will help us keep the covenant entered into for the maintenance of the freest government on earth.

"The nation and the name of Washington are inseparable. One is linked indissolubly with the other. Both are glorious, both triumphant. Washington lives, and will live, because what he did was for the exaltation of man, the enthronement of conscience, and the establishment of a government which recognizes all the governed. And so, too, will the nation live, victorious over all obstacles, adhering to the immortal principles which Washington taught and Lincoln sustained."

The formal presentation of the memorial by the Society of the Cincinnati to the city was made by Major Wayne to Mayor Warwick, with short addresses by both, and then the mayor transferred it to the Fairmount park commission, which body exercises jurisdiction over the great pleasure ground.

President McKinley and his distinguished companions reviewed the great military parade, and the crowd, when not looking at the troops, reviewed the president and his party.

PARIS RESTAURANTS.

INFORMATION FOR THOSE WHO INTEND VISITING THE GAY CITY.

The "Swell" Eating Places and Samples of Their Charges—Prices That Sometimes Astonish Even High Rolling Americans.

Those Americans who think that New York is an expensive place ought to go to Paris. There is no doubt that the prices of New York at first class places are high, but the New York restaurants have not reached such expertness in making out bills as they have in Paris. Therefore it is not at all uncommon to notice an American with his wife going over his bill with the hair slowly rising upon his head.

There are plenty of places in Paris where you can get a dinner cheaper—the bouillons Duval, for example. These restaurants are sprinkled all over Paris, and they give you plain food very well cooked at a reasonable figure. But the average American generally goes to the swell places, which are about 12 in number. There is the Cafe de Paris, Cubat's, Chevillard's, Durand's, Joseph's, the Restaurant Larue, the Tour d'Argent, Mairé's, Paillard's, the Maison Doree, the Cafe Voisin and the Restaurant Lucas, together with the Cafe Anglais, the Lion d'Or, Foyot's and Marquery's, if you choose to include them. The Cafe Anglais is no longer first class, the Lion d'Or has been closed, Foyot's is in the Latin quarter and Marquery's is only middle class. The highest priced places are Durand's, Paillard's and the Cafe Voisin, and these are the most frequented. Each year the restaurant frequented by the "swells" changes. Two years ago it was Durand's, last year it was Paillard's and this year it is Voisin's.

Americans are generally disappointed in the appearance of these places because they are frequently small and by no means gorgeous in their equipments. They are all arranged in about the same way—a row of cushioned seats or divans running around the wall, with tables placed next to them. The guests nearly always ensconce themselves on the seats next to the wall and are served from the other side of the tables by the waiters. Occasionally, when the place is crowded, people will seat themselves on the outside, but ordinarily they are found on only one side of the table. As for the table linen, the china, the knives and forks, they are by no means as fine as we find in many of the American hotels and restaurants. The cooking, however, is hard to excel. The reason that the Paris restaurants obtain such high prices is owing to their peculiarity of getting what they call primeurs. Their Paris epicurean guests seem to want to eat things out of season. For example, they are fond of serving you peas in January. Then, they will give you pheasants and birdnest soup and other exotic dishes.

Here is a sample dinner and a very plain one for two at a Paris restaurant. They charge you, by the way, 50 centimes, or 10 cents, to sit down. Therefore for the two places, or converts, put down 1 franc; an aperitif, the substitute for our American cocktail, another franc; a bottle of ordinary white wine, 3 francs; a bottle of ordinary burgundy, 7 francs; a tureen of bouillon, another franc; a sole with normandy sauce, 8 francs; a duckling with turnips and cream, 15 francs; asparagus with a delicate sauce, 12 francs; ice cream tart, 5 francs; coffee, half a franc; liqueurs, 1 franc; tip, half a franc; total, about 60 francs, or about $12.

The French have many ways of cooking eggs most deliciously. For example, eggs with shrimps, scrambled eggs with chicken gravy, and scrambled eggs with almost everything, much better, you find, than in America. They also cook many things in covered saucepans which are most appetizing. Their saucepans are earthenware, of the kind called casseroles, and by keeping them covered they can cook a chicken en casserole which will make your mouth water. The average American chicken is baked in an oven—although the cook thinks she is roasting it when she is only baking it—and, as a rule, it is dry and tasteless and unfit to eat.

You can get a lunch, or what the French call a breakfast, at any of these restaurants, including a bottle of ordinary wine, butter, shrimps, eggs and mushrooms, chicken with artichoke hearts, strawberry tart, coffee and cheese for about 25 francs, say $5. But all of these bills that I am giving you are the dinners and breakfasts ordered by people who are careful. The average American is apt to take things which are suggested to him by the waiter, and when he has eaten with his table companion say four dishes and finds that it costs $10 apiece it makes him very tired.

If you will notice, I have put on the bills of fare above only ordinary wines. If you place yourself in the hands of the sommelier, or wine steward, and tell him you want something very good, he will bring you up an old cobwebby bottle of burgundy without any tag on it and will tell you that it is good. So it is. It will generally cost you more than champagne, and by the same token it is better than champagne. Americans soon find out the places where they have good burgundy and bordeaux, but they have to pay for them. I would advise these Americans always to trust in the sommelier rather than attempt to find things themselves from the wine list, because the wine list is meaningless. All it can tell you is vintage and prices, and sometimes not even that.—Paris Cor. San Francisco Argonaut.

Shakespeare and Dogs.

Shakespeare loved dogs and has paid them many a tribute. See, for instance, the graphic description of hounds in the dialogue between Theseus and Hippolyta in "A Midsummer Night's Dream" (iv. 1, 108-132), and the talk of the hunters about the dogs in "The Taming of the Shrew" (ind. 1, 16-29), which are both too long for quotation here. In "The Merry Wives of Windsor" (i. 1, 96-104) Page defends his "fallow greyhound" against the criticisms of Slender and Shallow takes his part. Launce's praise of his dog Crab, though it was a worthless cur, in "The Two Gentlemen of Verona," is also in point, to say nothing of minor references to dogs in the plays and poems. The passage in "Macbeth" (iii. 1, 92-101) says in substance that there are dogs and dogs, as there are men and men. The First Murderer has said, "We are men, my liege," and Macbeth replies:

Aye, in the catalogue ye go for men, As hounds and greyhounds, mongrels, spaniels, curs,

Shoughs, water rugs, and demiwoives are cloyed All by the name of dogs; the valued file Distinguishes the swift, the slow, the subtle, The housekeeper, the hunter, every one According to the gift which bounteous nature Hath in him clos'd, whereby he does receive Particular addition, from the bill That writes them all alike, and so of men.

That is, in a general list of dogs we include all kinds, good, bad and indifferent, but "the valued file"—a list which classes them with reference to their value—distinguishes them according to their natural gifts or qualities, giving to each the "particular addition" (title, denomination, as often in Shakespeare) he deserves. Thus, "the housekeeper" (watchdog) and "the hunter" are superior to the "common cry of curs," etc.—Critic.

Cheerfulness in a Medicine.

Surprising recoveries occasionally happen which can be ascribed to no other cause than a cheerful state of mind and the healthful nervous influence which it diffuses through the frame. A singular but instructive instance fell under the observation of Sir Humphry Davy, when, early in life, he was assisting Dr. Beddoes in his experiments on the inhalation of nitrous oxide. Dr. Beddoes having inferred that the oxide must be a specific for palsy, a patient was selected for trial and placed under the care of Davy. Before administering the gas Davy inserted a small thermometer under the tongue of the patient to ascertain the temperature.

The paralytic man, wholly ignorant of the process to which he was to submit, but deeply impressed by Dr. Beddoes with the certainty of its success, no sooner felt the thermometer between his teeth than he concluded the talisman was in operation, and, in a burst of enthusiasm, declared that he already experienced the effects of its benign influence throughout his whole body. The opportunity was too tempting to be lost. Davy did nothing more, but desired his patient to return on the following day. The same ceremony was repeated, and the results followed, and at the end of a fortnight he was dismissed cured, no remedy of any kind except the thermometer having been used.—New York Ledger.

Horses Fed on Beefsteaks.

"Of all fads that fashionable people indulge in over their pets, I think the strangest idea is that of giving their horses meat as a variation to their ordinary diet," said a veterinary surgeon.

"Beef only is used. It is baked until quite dry, then minced very fine and given mixed with oats or meal. The animals, so far from refusing, seem to relish the mixture, and it is thought to improve their condition and courage, but if continued too long they become vicious and their coats deteriorate."

"A well known titled lady expends a good sized sum altogether in meat for her numerous carriage horses and hacks. She has one mare that will greedily eat a beefsteak unmixed with meal if minced small, and it has one per week. I know a retired army colonel, too, a famous hunting man, who frequently gives his hunters beef tea and other meat extracts in their bran mash. Possibly it's not entirely mere fad, for there is one London brewery whose horses are similarly treated, and a famous race horse that won some important events last season was given a partial diet of meat at intervals."—London Answers.

As Good as He Gave.

The Viscountess Sherbrooke, wife of Robert Lowe, was in the habit of saying whatever came into her mind at the moment. The French ambassador one day said to her somewhat patronizingly: "You know, England is said to be a land of shopkeepers. I had no idea of finding there such great military displays." "Ah," she replied, "the people of different countries do not understand each other. Now, I have actually been under the impression that the French were a great military nation."

It is not too much to say that in Britain a million of money might be saved annually on funeral and marriage ceremonies with no disrespect to the dead and an increase of comfort to the living.

TRYING TO BEHAVE HIMSELF

The Warden Has Had Him Removed From His Dungeon, and He Will Be Moved to a Better Place Provided He Keeps His Temper—Little Faith In Repentance.

Ira Marlatt, the prison fiend, is on his good behavior these days and is trying to merit promotion to a higher grade. He has been taken from his dungeon and placed in a cell in the solitary department of the prison, where he is closely watched and where there is considerable more light and pure, fresh air. His den has been cleaned out, fumigated, and closed for the present. Marlatt has been promised that if he will behave himself he will be allowed to remain in the solitary department, and it is believed that if he shows a proper spirit of submission he may be allowed to take another cell.

Officials of the penitentiary do not place too much faith in Marlatt's repentance, and he is closely watched. It has been noticed since the last outbreak that he spent hours at a time in earnest thought, and some incline to the belief that he is anxious to do better, but he will be kept under a guard's eye as in the past.

NO RELIGIOUS ARGUMENTS

Are Permitted by the Police in the Diamond.

Holiness Ward was in the Diamond last evening, and as usual spent his time in vilifying the churches and their pastors. While his harangue was in progress one of the fakirs, who occupied the Diamond Saturday evening, engaged in an argument with Lon Thomas, one of Ward's followers. The crowd quickly left Ward and crowded around the contestants. Ward sang a little in the hope of attracting attention, but gave it up. The fakir was getting the best of Thomas at every point when the argument was stopped by Officer Jennings, who said he would allow no religious arguments to take place in the Diamond. The contestants immediately moved around to the other side of the monument and began their debate again. This aroused the ire of the officer, and he informed them if they didn't move on he would arrest them. This had the desired effect, and a disgraceful scene was stopped.

THE AWNING BLAZED,

But People in the Store Knew Nothing of It.

The awning of a Diamond business house caught fire Saturday evening from a piece of red fire dropped from the lodge room of the Rechabites. The blaze was discovered by pedestrians in a few minutes, and the fire was extinguished in a short time, but not before a large hole had been burned in the awning. The occupants of the store did not know the awning was on fire until all danger was over.

Ira Marlatt, the prison fiend, is on his good behavior these days and is trying to merit promotion to a higher grade. He has been taken from his dungeon and placed in a cell in the solitary department of the prison, where he is closely watched and where there is considerable more light and pure, fresh air. His den has been cleaned out, fumigated, and closed for the present. Marlatt has been promised that if he will behave himself he will be allowed to remain in the solitary department, and it is believed that if he shows a proper spirit of submission he may be allowed to take another cell.

Officials of the penitentiary do not place too much faith in Marlatt's repentance, and he is closely watched. It has been noticed since the last outbreak that he spent hours at a time in earnest thought, and some incline to the belief that he is anxious to do better, but he will be kept under a guard's eye as in the past.

Are Permitted by the Police in the Diamond.

Holiness Ward was in the Diamond last evening, and as usual spent his time in vilifying the churches and their pastors. While his harangue was in progress one of the fakirs, who occupied the Diamond Saturday evening, engaged in an argument with Lon Thomas, one of Ward's followers. The crowd quickly left Ward and crowded around the contestants. Ward sang a little in the hope of attracting attention, but gave it up. The fakir was getting the best of Thomas at every point when the argument was stopped by Officer Jennings, who said he would allow no religious arguments to take place in the Diamond. The contestants immediately moved around to the other side of the monument and began their debate again. This aroused the ire of the officer, and he informed them if they didn't move on he would arrest them. This had the desired effect, and a disgraceful scene was stopped.

THE AWNING BLAZED,

But People in the Store Knew Nothing of It.

The awning of a Diamond business house caught fire Saturday evening from a piece of red fire dropped from the lodge room of the Rechabites. The blaze was discovered by pedestrians in a few minutes, and the fire was extinguished in a short time, but not before a large hole had been burned in the awning. The occupants of the store did not know the awning was on fire until all danger was over.

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., MONDAY, MAY 17.

PRESIDENT MCKINLEY'S Cuban policy gives promise of being as popular as it is just.

THE senate might gain the confidence of the people if it could pass the tariff bill and talk about it afterward.

DOCTOR HUNTER was vindicated by the Kentucky legislature, but it is noticed that another fellow received the senatorial job.

It does not speak well for America when a ship flying the stars and stripes cannot be found to carry this nation's contribution of corn to poor India.

ONE hard rap from President McKinley's facile pen, and General Weyler may decide that it is not best to starve and shoot Americans without provocation.

LET us hope that the Logan-McCook uniform controversy will not extend through very many months. This country is too big to be interested in matters so unimportant.

THE NEWS REVIEW enjoys a splendid advertising patronage because the business men of East Liverpool know that its circulation is an honest circulation, one which places their announcements before the purchasing public.

THE whole tone of the Democratic press goes to show a disordered, dyspeptic condition which the silver treatment cannot cure. Perhaps a little of the gold brand, shipped direct from Cincinnati, would have some affect.

MCLAN has already started his campaign, and the boys who expect to get something in the way of plums after the pie is baked, are lining up in a most satisfactory manner. But Lew Bernard and a few more of his stripe are by no means the people of Ohio.

IF there is anything in the rumor that the sugar trust is holding up the tariff bill until it secures just what it wants, it is the duty of this government to speedily show the sugar trust that no commercial body, no matter what its influence and wealth, can control the legislation of the nation. The sugar kings have no claim on America.

ONE of the good things yet to be done is the revocation of a few rules whereby Mr. Cleveland placed a great many of his political friends in comfortable berths. No patriotic person doubts the necessity of a system of promotion in the civil service through merit, but that system must not be the rotten political machine created by the late president.

ANOTHER DEFECTIVE LAW.
The supreme court has again proved that Ohio's legislators make laws that are of no earthly use beyond the adornment of a page in the calf bound Revised Statutes. This is by no means startling intelligence. Ohio has heard it before, and heard it often. The state would not give it more than a passing glance, but would accept it as an old story were it not for the truth that the defective measure is one of importance and its deformity will have an influence wide spread. The law in question provided for the labeling of convict made goods when made in Ohio, and the payment of $500 a year with a bond of $5000 before the wares of some other states' convicts should reach our markets. Now the law is no more. It conflicted with a section of the Federal constitution, and, of course, had to die. It is to be hoped some future legislature, if it touches upon the matter at all, will formulate a statute that will at least bear the scrutiny of the supreme court of its own state.

MERCER LOST HIS GAME

And He Also Escaped Arrest
In Cleveland.

PITTSBURG TOO MUCH FOR HIM

The Senators Did Their Best But Were Shut Out While the Other Fellows Got
Two Runs—Liverpool at Niles—Our Boys
In Akron.

Winnie Mercer held the Pittsburg team down to six hits Saturday afternoon, but lost the game by a score of 2 to 0. Both runs were scored in the second inning, and one of them was due to an error by Mercer while the other was earned. He gave five bases on balls, and hit one man. A large number of rooters from here did all they could to help him win, but it was to no purpose as the Pittsburg pitcher also put up a great game, and his team played without an error, while Washington made three.

The Washington and Cleveland teams were arrested at Cleveland yesterday to prevent a game. The Cleveland management announced some time ago that Sunday ball would be a feature of the season, but the authorities decided otherwise, and there was no game. Mercer not being among the players was not arrested.

The East Liverpool team has received an offer to play at Niles next Friday and Saturday. If the home grounds are not finished before that time it will probably be accepted. The Eclipse team, Decoration day, will play two games at Sharon, Pa.

Our Boys have made arrangements to play the Akron team at Silver Lake, June 17.

The Sebring and Burford pottery teams Saturday afternoon played a one-sided game at West End park. In the fifth inning the ball was taken, and the game came to a sudden close. Score:

| | | | |
|--|----|----|----|
| | R. | H. | E. |
| Sebring..... | 6 | 6 | 4 |
| Burford..... | 1 | 2 | 0 |
| Batteries—Sebring, Kinney and Reed; Burford, Harrison and Kennedy. | 5 | 26 | 23 |
| | 0 | 0 | 3 |

The victors have now won two games and lost none, and think they are on the high way to the championship. They will play the glass works team next week.

C. C. Anghenbaugh, the well known bicyclist of Beaver, who, in '95 trained at the East End track, will this year follow the professionals as a member of the team representing a well known bicycle factory.

George McNicol and Dennis McCurran have signed contracts with the Corning, N. Y., team and have received orders to report May 20.

John Godwin has signed a Batavia, N. Y., contract and has been notified to hold himself in readiness to report at any moment as they will telegraph him this week.

The Dresden baseball team will challenge the Sebring club to play a game of ball at West End park for $50 a side. The challenge will probably be accepted.

Ejected a Passenger.

When a Wellsville bound car reached the Diamond last evening the motor-man and several male passengers ejected a drunk who was making life a burden for the others in the car. He sat on the curbstone for a time when several friends who passed noticed him. They picked him up, and by the alley route he soon reached his home.

Found a Stow-away.

When the Turners' excursion barge left Pittsburg last evening a small news-boy was discovered on the upper deck crying bitterly. Captain Robison was called and after receiving an explanation as to why he was on the boat said he should make the round trip. He cried most all the way.

Brought Home Cans.

When the Turners were in Pittsburg yesterday a number of them made their way to the Jenkins building, and after securing burned tin cans, brought them back to this city as mementos of the trip. The cans are all shapes and sizes.

His Child Ill.

Presiding Elder Jackson, who preached at the First M. E. church yesterday morning, was called to his home this morning on account of the serious illness of a child. He lives in Steubenville.

Two Dances.

The first dance in several weeks will be given this evening at Brunt's.

The Eclipse baseball team and their friends will dance Thursday evening at Brunt's. The proceeds will be used to purchase uniforms.

Tunneling the Strait of Messina.

Engineering achievements and possibilities, from the modern point of view, are receiving an additional illustration in the case of the projected tunnel between the mainland of Italy and the island of Sicily, plans and details of which, in model, as executed by the Italian civil engineer De Johannis, have attracted much attention at the University of Padua. After thorough and careful studies of the strait of Messina, its varying depths, the nature of the ground and of all other conditions which might assist or interfere with such an undertaking, De Johannis decided that the beginning of the tunnel should be near San Giovanni di Sanitello, at the foot of the Aspromonte mountain range, the mouth on the other side to be located on the degli Inglesi plain. The entire tunnel will be nearly two miles long and will consist in the main of two shafts of about 10,000 feet each, descending at a grade not exceeding 32 feet in each 1,000. Such a tunnel is thought preferable to a bridge that would involve such a great span and wind exposure.—Harper's Round Table.

Maryland Rice and Tobacco.

According to the Baltimore News, the farmers of Maryland are becoming interested in the movement for a general cultivation of tobacco and for the introduction of the raising of rice. In earlier days tobacco was grown throughout the state, but for the last half century it has been confined to the counties of southern Maryland. Rice has never been grown in the state, but the recent success with this crop in lower New Jersey has led many to think that it can be profitably taken up in Delaware and Maryland. The yield of rice is from 35 to 60 bushels an acre, and the net profit is said to be from $25 to $45 an acre.

A RECKLESS WHEELMAN

Knocked Down Mrs. Jennings
In Sixth Street.

HE RODE HURRIEDLY AWAY

When He Discovered That She Was Unconscious and the People Were Angry. Severe but Not Dangerous Injuries. Scorching Must Be Stopped.

An accident due to the carelessness of a bicycle scorching occurred last Saturday evening at the corner of Sixth and Jefferson streets.

Mrs. R. J. Jennings, mother of Officer Jennings, was crossing the street when without a note of warning, a wheelman who was riding at a rapid rate, was upon her. The lady attempted to get out of the way but it was too late and the bicycle struck her and knocked her down while the rider of the wheel took a header.

A crowd collected in a very short time, and as the remarks made were very uncomplimentary to the bicyclist he mounted his wheel and rode away without even waiting to inquire how badly the lady was injured. Mrs. Jennings was rendered unconscious by the collision. She was picked up and carried to her home a short distance away where restoratives were applied, and it was found she had been severely bruised about the face and head. Her wounds were very painful, but it is not thought any serious results will follow.

The practice of fast bicycle riding in the streets is becoming more general every day and unless a halt is called someone will be seriously injured.

The majority of scorches pay no attention whatever to the rights of pedestrians, and every evening life and limb are endangered. The bicycle riders as a whole would be thankful to see the ordinance enforced to the letter, as pleasure riders are placed in a very dangerous position when the scorches are out.

SLAPPED HER ESCORT

And Then Jumped Into the River, but Was Rescued.

Residents of West Fourth street yesterday were treated to scene not down on the bills. Early in the afternoon a man and woman passed down the street quarreling. When they reached the railroad the woman turned and gave her escort a slap in the face and kicked him on the shins. She then went to the river bank and jumped in the water, but her escort promptly fished her out, and the two came up to the railroad and walked toward Jethro. The residents are at a loss to account for the actions of the woman.

NOT THIS SUMMER

Will the Christian Church Erect a Building.

The soliciting committee of the Christian church raised more money for the building fund than was anticipated. When the deal was about to be made, Saturday last, the committee reported $6,328.78 collected. The trustees only borrowed $1,671.73. The land is now the property of the church and the official board will meet this evening to decide what action will be taken in reference to the hall. It is safe to say, no church will be erected the coming summer.

NOT EXACTLY A BABY.

How a Woman Played a Trick on a Cable Car Conductor.

"John, dear, some one ought to speak to that woman. See, she's smothering." "I'm not running this road. Besides, it's probably her own kid." "Well, I shall certainly inform the authorities. It's over 15 minutes that dear little thing hasn't had a breath of air. Won't you call the police?"

Of course this dialogue was furnished by husband and wife. Scene—A cable car bound down town. The character spoken of as "that woman" was a female of uncertain age and decided sternness. She boarded the car at Fifty-ninth street. In her arms she carried the "it" referred to man fashion as "the kid." Tenderly, almost to suffocation, the woman hugged her charge. Not even the end of its tiny nose nor a wisp of baby hair peeped out from the folds of the long cloak. The woman snuggled and cuddled the bundled child, and never an infantile wail or a gasp for breath aroused the wondering passengers to action. When the car reached Thirty-fourth street, "that woman," still hugging her bundle, left the car. The husband and wife followed. The car sped on.

Safe on the sidewalk, the woman paused, shook the folds of the baby's cloak, and deposited on the pavement a long eared, wet nosed, watery eyed spaniel. That was all.

"Well, John, I'm beat," said the wife. "So's the conductor and the company," responded John. "She smuggled the beast and got the best of the company. I was smart enough to mind my own business. Come on."—New York Sun.

The Language of Crime.

The general tendency of the criminal to reduce the abstract to the concrete, to denote the substantive by one of its attributes, is shown very clearly in his synecdochical phraseology. Thus a purse is a leather; a street car is a short, comparing its length with a railroad car; a handkerchief is a wipe, and a pair of shoes a pair of kicks.

Again, some of the terms appear to be purely arbitrary, and were it not that the creative power is absent in criminals as in women I should not hesitate to state it as a fact. But it seems wiser to conclude merely that the origin of these terms has become obscured. To suppose that they were created would be in too distinct contradiction to all obtainable evidence, indirect though it may be. Such expressions are to kip, meaning to sleep; to spiel, to make a speech; jerve, a waistcoat pocket; thimble, a watch; to do a lam, meaning to run.

Some of the expressions are very descriptive. To run from a police officer is to do a hot foot. A person who is always listening to other people's conversation is called a rubber neck. The word push, meaning a crowd, is occasionally seen in the newspapers. To be arrested is to be pinched; to be convicted is to fall. To refuse a person's appeal is to give him the marble heart. Such expressions require no explanation.—A. F. B. Crofton in Popular Science Monthly.

LIQUOR BY THE QUART

Marked the Excursion to Yellow Creek by Boat.

DISGRACEFUL SCENES WITNESSED

There Were a Number of Heated Arguments, and the Cry Was Raised That a Man Had Fallen Overboard—Women Waded Ashore to Escape the Crowd.

The river excursion Saturday night was a disgraceful affair, and was marked by incidents which recalled other days on the Ohio when the details were even more shocking.

Any quantity of liquor was taken on board in bottles by some of the excursionists before the boat left the wharf, and the ride was not commenced before the crowd became noisy. A number of heated arguments were in progress, and the presence of cooler people alone prevented a general fight. Some one raised the cry that a man was overboard, and the excitement became intense. It proved to be nothing more serious than a ducking for one of the crowd who dropped off the wharfboat. In a scuffle one man lost his hat, and other hats were passed around collecting the amount of another. When passing Wellsville the passengers howled like so many Indians, and after the landing three women, who had grown tired of the crowd, jumped off the boat and waded ashore. The noise on board was continuous, the boisterous crowd keeping it up until they reached Broadway at midnight. Many stories are told of the ride, among them being that one woman fainted three times.

HI HENRY'S MINSTRELS.

A Splendid Attraction Will Come to the Grand Opera House.

Lovers of first-class minstrelsy will have an opportunity of seeing one of the largest and best burnt cork attractions at the Grand on Thursday, May 20, when Hi. Henry's minstrels will appear. Mr. Hi. Henry is credited with presenting one of the strongest minstrel attractions of the present time. The company is a large one, embracing eight comedians, two distinct quartets, a grand, carefully drilled chorus of twenty, an orchestra of fifteen, and a superb military band of twenty-five, who discourse Wagner's music and the classical overtures. The vocal and instrumental features of the attraction are said to be unequalled in their line.

INSTALLED OFFICERS.

A Big Crowd Saw the Ceremony at the First M. E. Church.

A large audience at the First M. E. church, last evening, witnessed the installation of the newly elected officers of the Epworth League. The pulpit was filled with flowers, and the speaker, Reverend Salmon, was almost hidden from view. The League choir of 18 voices, rendered appropriate music. After the reports of the outgoing officers were read Reverend Salmon delivered a short talk on "Whatsoever thy hands find to do, do it with thy might."

ASSOCIATION SUNDAY

Will Be Observed Next Week In This City.

Association Sunday will be observed by the local Young Men's Christian association, Sunday, May 30. Elaborate preparations are being made, and the pulpits of churches on that day will be occupied by prominent association speakers. State Secretary W. A. Kling, Secretary Shurtcliffe, of Cleveland, Secretary Caskey, of Youngstown, and several other well known association workers will be present to assist in the observance of the day.

The First Session.

The first session of the Epworth League convention will be held this evening in the Second M. E. church. A large number of people from this place will attend.

Small Boys and Craps.

A number of small boys engaged in a game of craps on the Central school steps, fronting the alley. The game started at 8:30 and lasted over an hour.

Not Troubled.

Officer Whan had but little trouble in keeping the crowds moving Saturday evening, as the majority of loafers spent their time in the Diamond listening to the fakirs.

Natty Caps.

All the Cleveland & Pittsburg passenger employes this morning were wearing their summer caps. They presented a natty appearance.

BOTTLED BACTERIA.

Fears Hitherto Expressed as to Their Dire Effects Are Passing Away.

The average layman has long been sustained by a secret belief that the vast majority of bacteria are harmless, and, considering that he daily consumes millions of them in eating, drinking and sleeping, it is consoling to find the belief confirmed by an eminent authority.

Another scientist contributing to an English review does something toward relieving bacteria of their evil name by explaining how much they have to do with successful butter making. Butter, as every one knows, is best made from sour cream and does not keep well unless the cream is soured before churning. This result is usually attained by letting the cream stand till it sours of its own accord. But a series of experiments carried on in Sleswick-Holstein have proved that the souring of cream is produced by the presence of certain bacteria, which can be cultivated and introduced in such a way as to cause artificially the necessary souring.

A doctor named Witter has studied the subject, and "so skillfully blended certain cultures together that when the mixture was added in due proportion to sterilized cream to effect souring, the butter made therefrom was of most delicious flavor, pure and of great commercial value, inasmuch as it kept admirably.

The dried seed or powder of the bacteria used in this process can now be bought put up in bottles. A proportion is added to a small quantity of skimmed milk, which is subjected to a moderate continuous heat till the bacteria have developed. The "fermentation starter" is then added to the cream. The pure culture is only used occasionally, enough of the "starter" being left over every day to begin operations with on the next. The excellence of Danish butter is attributed to the care taken in choosing the "fermentation starter."—Popular Science Monthly.

HUMMING BIRDS.

Their Wonderfully Fashioned Diminutive Nests and Their Tiny Eggs.

Suddenly a glint shot from the point where my gaze was dreamily focused. That was all, but suspicion and savage instincts were aroused. For ten minutes my eyes followed the contour of each of the small boughs 20 feet above me, mere twigs from a higher and greater branch, which in turn declined from a mighty, outstretched arm of the giant. Presently suspicion centered in an insignificant, lichen covered wart on the upper side of a branch as large, perhaps, as a lady's wrist. It was like a dozen others, yet not exactly like them. The lichen seemed to me just a shade grayer and more regular, and the knot was a trifle too round. I feared to take my eyes away, lest it were lost before I had proved it to be only a natural excrescence. The sudden glint again struck my eye, there was a strange, tuneful hum, and—eureka! Directly above the point I was watching there hovered, with wings vibrating themselves into a misty point, an exquisite ruby throat. Then it settled on the diminutive cup of lichen, and I had found my first humming bird's nest.

By climbing far up above and then crawling carefully down on a separate limb, one could look over the nest, scarcely a yard away, to admire the tiny white eggs and the even more fairy-like nest, marvelously woven inside with the finest and softest fiber, and coated on the outer periphery against the weather with delicate lichen, which just turned the rim so as to shed any insistent raindrop that might penetrate the manifold roof of leaves overhead. The whole would have fitted in a circle made by joining the index finger and thumb.—"The Oakdwellers," by C. D. Lanier, in Scribner's.

Death Through a Tarantula.

One of the quickest and most complete and justifiable killings that ever I saw came about through a tarantula. It was at a mine camp, and the camp bully had a tarantula impaled on a stick. A man newly arrived from the east stood gazing, fascinated with horror, at the squirming reptile, working its black fangs in the effort to reach something that it could fasten them into. Suddenly, without warning, the bully thrust the tarantula straight into the tenderfoot's face. His whiskers saved him from the fangs, but he let out a yell as if he had actually been bitten and jumped back, I fully believe, ten feet. Then, as the fellow came poking the tarantula toward him again, the tenderfoot drew his revolver and turned loose on his tormentor. His first shot would have been enough, as it went straight through the fellow's body, but the tenderfoot had his excitement to work off, and he never stopped shooting until his revolver had been emptied and the man with the tarantula was a sieve. "Served him right," was the verdict of the coroner's jury, and the case never went to court for trial.—New York Sun.

Wesley Is There.

One of the most beautiful English church edifices is Barnet church, Herts. In this church, according to The Methodist Times of London, are grained niches in which respectively are appropriately placed well considered and cleverly modeled statuettes of England's six greatest preachers. The list is as follows:

St. Augustine of Canterbury, the apostle of England; St. Aidan, bishop of Lindisfarne; St. Hugh of Lincoln; Latimer, the martyr; John Wesley and Canon Liddon. So far as we are aware, this is the first time John Wesley has been placed in an Episcopal church on a level with such goodly company.

A Cheap Hair Cut.

There is in New York city a little German barber shop the proprietor of which has a grievance against the Irish race that will not be wiped out for some time. One evening in his hearty German way he welcomed a customer, a burly son of Ireland, with an enormous shock of hair, who roughly cried: "Oi want a hair cut. Do yez moind?" "Yah, von hair cut mit der head?" "Yis, that's it, wan hair cut." And with a yawn the Celtic gentleman threw himself in the chair.

While the barber was preparing his scissors the Irishman nodded a few times and in a short while had apparently dropped into a doze. The barber went industriously to work, and the locks fell with every clip of the scissors. Meanwhile the Irishman slept on. At last the hair was cut and brushed, and the barber exclaimed:

"Ach, dat is goot. You looks joost like von gentleman."

With a start the man of Ireland awoke and gave a glance in the mirror.

"Say, Germany, did Oi ask yez to cut my hair?"

"Yah, dot's vot I do."

"What's that? Did Oi say Oi wanted my hair cut? Did Oi?"

"Yah, yah! Dot's right."

With a rush the Irishman grabbed him by the collar.

"Look here, Germany. Oi said Oi wanted a hair cut. That's one hair—do yez hear?—the long wan that was hangin in front. For what do yez want to be cuttin all of thim? Oi'll have the law on yez at once fer that." And with a wrathful countenance he slapped on his hat and left the place before the astonished barber could recover from his fright.

When the rollicking Irish wit turned the corner, he was heard to remark, "Faith, that's a chape way to git a hair cut."—Harper's Round Table.

The First Teacups.

Even after tea was introduced into Europe and had come into general use teacups were scarce. At the same time coffee was introduced, but apart from Constantinople the first coffee cups in Europe date back only as far as 1645 in Venice, 1659 in Paris, 1652 in London and 1694 in Leipsic. From the first, however, the conventional oriental coffee cup, without stem or handle, was little used, and in Germany not at all. The Chinese teacup was used for tea, coffee and chocolate as well. Specimens of porcelain were undoubtedly introduced into Europe in the middle ages, yet not till the sixteenth century were cups imported from China in any great quantities, and even then it was as articles of vertu. Most of these found their way back to China again, as collecting porcelain is a lasting fad there, and high prices are paid for good specimens. The collection of Chinese porcelain, if only the genuine specimens are desired, requires immense study and knowledge, as the Chinese are skillful imitators and put numerous falsifications on the market.—Jewelers' Circular.

Welsh Rabbit.

Welsh rabbit is not a corruption of any rare-bit. It is simply a colloquial name for a dish and has numerous kindred names. Here is a tolerably complete list, the first four being of American, the others of British origin: "Jersey lightning," meaning whisky; "Cape Cod turkeys," meaning codfish; "Albany beef," meaning sturgeon; "Maryland chicken," meaning lobster; "New-haven broth," meaning boiled mussels; "Digby chickens," "Glasgow magistrates," "Gourock hams," "Dunbar wethers," "Norfolk capons," all meaning red herrings; "Field Lane ducks," meaning boiled sheephead and onions; "Bombay ducks," meaning dried fish; "Bristol milk," meaning sherry; "Irish apricots," "Irish fruit," "Munster plums," meaning potatoes. Then an "Essex stile" is a ditch; an "Essex lion," a calf; a "Jerusalem pony," a donkey. So Welsh rabbit is one of many territorial slang names of articles of food.—New York Sun.

Tramps sometimes try to indulge in witticisms, according to the story of a lady on Euclid place.

"No."

"No fire?"

"No bread?"

"No."

"Well, could you give me a basket?" he asked finally.

"What do you want a basket for?" inquired the woman.

"Ter get yer poor starvin family somethin to eat," he answered sarcastically as he edged away.—Cleveland Leader.

The great fire of New York took place in 1835. The value of property destroyed on this occasion was $15,000,000.

Kindred Occupations.

"What is your maw doin?" asked the severe old lady, as they met on the street corner.

LIQUOR BY THE QUART

Marked the Excursion to Yellow Creek by Boat.

DISGRACEFUL SCENES WITNESSED

There Were a Number of Heated Arguments, and the Cry Was Raised That a Man Had Fallen Overboard—Women Waded Ashore to Escape the Crowd.

The river excursion Saturday night was a disgraceful affair, and was marked by incidents which recalled other days on the Ohio when the details were even more shocking.

Any quantity of liquor was taken on board in bottles by some of the excursionists before the boat left the wharf, and the ride was not commenced before the crowd became noisy. A number of heated arguments were in progress, and the presence of cooler people alone prevented a general fight. Some one raised the cry that a man was overboard, and the excitement became intense. It proved to be nothing more serious than a ducking for one of the crowd who dropped off the wharfbat. In a scuffle one man lost his hat, and other hats were passed around collecting the amount of another.

When passing Wellsville the passengers howled like so many Indians, and after the landing three women, who had grown tired of the crowd, jumped off the boat and waded ashore. The noise on board was continuous, the boisterous crowd keeping it up until they reached Broadway at midnight. Many stories are told of the ride, among them being that one woman fainted three times.

HI HENRY'S MINSTRELS.

A Splendid Attraction Will Come to the Grand Opera House.

Lovers of first-class minstrelsy will have an opportunity of seeing one of the largest and best burnt cork attractions at the Grand on Thursday, May 20, when Hi Henry's minstrels will appear. Mr. Hi Henry is credited with presenting one of the strongest minstrel attractions of the present time. The company is a large one, embracing eight comedians, two distinct quartets, a grand, carefully drilled chorus of twenty, an orchestra of fifteen, and a superb military band of twenty-five, who discourse Wagner's music and the classical overtures. The vocal and instrumental features of the attraction are said to be unequalled in their line.

INSTALLED OFFICERS.

A Big Crowd Saw the Ceremony at the First M. E. Church.

A large audience at the First M. E. church, last evening, witnessed the installation of the newly elected officers of the Epworth League. The pulpit was filled with flowers, and the speaker, Reverend Salmon, was almost hidden from view. The League choir of 18 voices, rendered appropriate music. After the reports of the outgoing officers were read Reverend Salmon delivered a short talk on "Whatsoever thy hands find to do, do it with thy might."

Kling, Secretary Shurtcliffe, of Cleveland, Secretary Caskey, of Youngstown, and several other well known association workers will be present to assist in the observance of the day.

The First Session.

The first session of the Epworth League convention will be held this evening in the Second M. E. church. A large number of people from this place will attend.

Small Boys and Craps.

BOTTLED BACTERIA.

Fears Hitherto Expressed as to Their Dire Effects Are Passing Away.

The average layman has long been sustained by a secret belief that the vast majority of bacteria are harmless, and, considering that he daily consumes millions of them in eating, drinking and sleeping, it is consoling to find the belief confirmed by an eminent authority.

Another scientist contributing to an English review does something toward relieving bacteria of their evil name by explaining how much they have to do with successful butter making. Butter, as every one knows, is best made from sour cream and does not keep well unless the cream is soured before churning. This result is usually attained by letting the cream stand till it sours of its own accord. But a series of experiments carried on in Sleswick-Holstein have proved that the souring of cream is produced by the presence of certain bacteria, which can be cultivated and introduced in such a way as to cause artificially the necessary souring.

A doctor named Witter has studied the subject, and "so skillfully blended certain cultures together that when the mixture was added in due proportion to sterilized cream to effect souring, the butter made therefrom was of most delicious flavor, pure and of great commercial value, inasmuch as it kept admirably.

The dried seed or powder of the bacteria used in this process can now be bought put up in bottles. A proportion is added to a small quantity of skimmed milk, which is subjected to a moderate continuous heat till the bacteria have developed. The "fermentation starter" is then added to the cream. The pure culture is only used occasionally, enough of the "starter" being left over every day to begin operations with on the next. The excellence of Danish butter is attributed to the care taken in choosing the "fermentation starter."—Popular Science Monthly.

HUMMING BIRDS.

Their Wonderfully Fashioned Diminutive Nests and Their Tiny Eggs.

Suddenly a glint shot from the point where my gaze was dreamily focused. That was all, but suspicion and savage instincts were aroused. For ten minutes my eyes followed the contour of each of the small boughs 20 feet above me, mere twigs from a higher and greater branch, which in turn declined from a mighty, outstretched arm of the giant. Presently suspicion centered in an insignificant, lichen covered wart on the upper side of a branch as large, perhaps, as a lady's wrist. It was like a dozen others, yet not exactly like them. The lichen seemed to me just a shade grayer and more regular, and the knot was a trifle too round. I feared to take my eyes away, lest it were lost before I had proved it to be only a natural excrescence. The sudden glint again struck my eye, there was a strange, tuneful hum, and—eureka! Directly above the point I was watching there hovered, with wings vibrating themselves into a misty point, an exquisite ruby throat. Then it settled on the diminutive cup of lichen, and I had found my first humming bird's nest.

By climbing far up above and then crawling carefully down on a separate limb, one could look over the nest, scarcely a yard away, to admire the tiny white eggs and the even more fairy-like nest, marvelously woven inside with the finest and softest fiber, and coated on the outer periphery against the weather with delicate lichen, which just turned the rim so as to shed any insistent raindrop that might penetrate the manifold roof of leaves overhead. The whole would have fitted in a circle made by joining the index finger and thumb.—"The Oakdwellers," by C. D. Lanier, in Scribner's.

His first shot would have been enough, as it went straight through the fellow's body, but the tenderfoot had his excitement to work off, and he never stopped shooting until his revolver had been emptied and the man with the tarantula was a sieve. AN HEIR TO MILLIONS

Prof. O. S. Reed May Come Into a Vast Fortune.

THE MOTHER OF WASHINGTON

Was the Sister of the Reverend Gentleman's Ancestor, and the Estate is the Accumulated Wealth of the Famous Ball Family—The Claimants May Soon Have Their Own.

Prof. O. S. Reed, pastor of the Christian church, is a gentleman who seldom talks of his private affairs, but he acknowledged when questioned by a NEWS REVIEW man that he is a descendant of the Ball family of Virginia, and as such is heir to many millions of dollars invested in valuable property in Philadelphia, Baltimore and the Old Dominion.

The story is a long one, and dates back to almost a century and a half ago when the Ball family was among the most famous of all Virginia. They were wealthy as wealthy people were counted in that day, and invested their money in real estate in the principal cities of the east. They did not dispose of their land outright, but having the greatest of faith in the future of the country, and knowing that the eastern coast would within the century support a population of millions they leased the property for various terms of years. When the investments were first made family records show that the leases were of short duration. So well were they recompensed that in later life they decided to extend the leases that their children and their children's children might derive some benefit from the sagacity and business sense of their ancestors. People were easily found who wanted to buy, and when they could not buy were willing to lease. As the Balls were determined and a great part of the property even at that time was valuable they experienced no difficulty in leasing the land for a period of 99 years. The papers were duly made out, and there is every reason to believe that the transactions were formally and legally executed. Not all the land has remained in the possession of the lessees and their descendants, some of it having been sold time and time again, but without a clear title since the lease stood between the purchaser and undisputed possession.

Several years ago some of the Ball family decided the time had come for action since the time of the leases would expire this year. They looked into the matter carefully, and committees were appointed to locate the land and secure information concerning its value. A number of heirs became deeply interested in the project, and have made such progress that the claim seems well established. There are about 70 heirs, and the property is valued at an amount sufficient to give each one something more than a million after deducting the enormous expenses required to conduct the litigation before they can hope to come into their own.

Strange as it may seem Professor Reed is not the only claimant in this county. Salem having one in the person of Nathan L. Ball, a prominent resident of that place. He is deeply interested in the matter, and has taken an active interest in establishing the proofs so far obtained. He believes the heirs have affairs so arranged that their efforts will be crowned with success.

Professor Reed has known of the estate for many years having heard of it from his mother who was always interested. It is from her side of the house he obtains his claim. The reverend gentleman is a direct descendant of a brother of the mother of George Washington, and can trace the matter without interruption through all the generations. The prospects of some day enjoying an enormous fortune are not new to him, but that he has not depended on it for his way in life is easily shown by the splendid position he holds in the ministry of his church.

Only Frightened.

Saturday evening while the streets were crowded a young lady, in passing the Hotel Grand, stepped in one of the basement window openings in the Sixth street side of the building, and was pitched headlong to the pavement. She was assisted to her feet by a young man, and it was found she was more frightened than injured.

Gates Repaired.

The gates at the Second street crossing are being repaired today. They have been out of order since Friday. Meantime the watchman has had to stand at the crossing with a white flag.

HENRY IRVING AS A JOKER.

He and Toole Made a Topsy Waiter Re- pent Temporarily.

Sir Henry Irving tells an amusing story of a joke that he, with Mr. Toole and a third party, played some years ago at a Glasgow hotel. After their work they were supping at the hotel, where, says Sir Henry, "there was in the room a high screen. The instant the waiter was gone we commenced operations. We stripped the silverware, of which there was a tolerable supply, from the table and placed it behind the screen. We then opened the window and turned out the gas, and finally all got under the table. We had only to remain in our cramped position a few minutes before we heard the unsteady feet of our friend, the waiter, along the passage.

"The darkened room amazed him and the cold air from the window seemed to strike him with affright.

"'Goodness!' exclaimed he, 'it's thieves they are. A thocht as much frae the luiks o' them, and frae their gay talk and their laughter. Eh, but I'm a ruined man. A wish a' had nae taen the hale o' that last bottle. Hear! Hear! Thieves! Thieves! Murder! Thieves! Thieves!' and shouting at the top of his voice he ran out of the room and along the passage.

"The minute he had gone we shut the door, lit the gas, restored the silver to the table and sat round as before, enjoying a quiet cigar. Presently there was a confused murmur along the passage. It grew louder and louder, and in poured a truly motley throng, mostly half dressed, consisting of the manager, two men in bare legs and slippers, and a lady with a blanket, in the alarm of fear caught up, followed by our agonized friend, the waiter. One man was armed with a poker and the other carried a bronze statuette ready to hurl at the thief. As they entered we all sat back and looked at them in well feigned amazement, and Toole said to the astonished and bewildered manager, 'Do you always come in this way with your friends when a gentleman asks for his bill?'—London Telegraph.

THE MAKING OF POISON.

A Factory Where the Most Deadly Drugs Are Prepared.

In London is a strange establishment, behind a wilderness of warehouses and tumbledown tenements, in a remote suburb. Its massive gates are locked and jealously guarded. A visitor must not only be careful where he steps and refrain from touching, he must also breathe with great caution. One of the terrible poisons manufactured here is pure anhydrous acid, a drug seldom seen outside a chemical laboratory. This is the deadliest of all known poisons. The discoverer was stricken dead from inhaling its fumes. From 3 to 5 per cent of this chemical added to 95 or 97 parts of water makes prussic acid. This diluted poison causes instant death, even when taken in minute quantities.

Next to anhydrous acid, the worst poison they make is cyanide of potassium. Last year they turned out over 1,000 tons of it. Five grains being a fatal dose, the annual output would be sufficient to kill 2,500,000 people. In the workroom, where men are gathered around a witch's caldron containing over a hundred weight of molten cyanide, a strange picture is presented. The seething mass of white hot liquid poison, with the lambent play of the furnace fires, the phantom faces of the workmen, enveloped in an uncanny looking glass mask, peering into the heart of the dreadful mixture through the thick atmosphere, are a terrible sight. In another room, where are tons of the finished product, looking like crystallized sugar, "good enough to eat," one man is never allowed alone. For some inexplicable reason it exercises a strange fascination for the men who inhale its fumes. They are haunted by a desire to eat it. But, knowing that satisfying the craving means instant death, most, but not all, are able to resist it. Aside from this fascination its manufacture is not considered unhealthy. The same cannot be said of corrosive sublimate. Its fumes are deadly.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

His Bonus.

They were just closing up the real estate deal, and the man who always wanted something thrown in to make a good bargain appeared to hesitate. "What'll you throw in?" "What'll I what?" "What'll you throw in as a sort of bonus?" "Oh, yes, yes, of course!" said the real estate man. "How stupid of me! Why, the fact is, in our line of business we are not exactly in the habit of giving prizes, but, in this case, just to make it binding, I don't mind throwing in the back taxes."

"Now you're talking business!" exclaimed the would be purchaser. "It always pays for a man to stick out for his rights."

It was only after the transfer was made that he discovered the back taxes were payable by and not to the owner.—Chicago Post.

How Grant Saved Two Nations From War.

Hon. John Russell Young, a former United States minister to China, regards General Grant's part in arranging a treaty of peace between China and Japan as one of the shining achievements of his career. Writing of "When

Grant Went Round the World" in The Ladies' Home Journal, Mr. Young says Prince Kung, then a sort of regent for China, in his conversations at Peking with General Grant, talked with earnestness upon the relations between China and Japan. This led to a message from the prince to the mikado, an extraordinary incident little known in the histories, and the whole business in time to be so managed by the general that war between the two nations was postponed. "At Nikko, Japan, General Grant met the Japanese ministers, who came by the mikado's command, to discuss with him the message he had brought from Prince Kung and Li Hung Chang. Count Ito, secretary of the interior; Count Saigo, the minister of war; Count Inouye, foreign minister, and Mr. Yoshida, the Japanese envoy to Washington, composed the embassy. They sat in a little temple (the afternoon sultry, a thunder storm rattling among the hills) and discussed the issues. In the end was a letter addressed to Prince Kung and the Japanese prime minister, containing suggestions which were accepted by both governments. It was a basis of peace not to be broken for many years. So it will be seen that there were useful days, as well as days of pageantry, in Japan. General Grant in time became not alone the friend but the companion of the mikado and his counselors."

Wouldn't Be Stood Off.

There was a bold, bad man making things hot in a Texas town a few days ago. He wore long hair, a deerskin hunting suit, a big sombrero, and he was waving a small firepiece in his hand and yelling for somebody to wade in and get pulverized.

He had his back against the courthouse, and the city marshal and the police argued with him from the middle of the street and dodged every time he swung his howitzer in their direction. Lots of citizens had turned out to witness the performance, and it looked for awhile as if the bad man had the whole town against the ropes.

Presently a little, weak kneed drummer from Connecticut, who was among the crowd, adjusted his spectacles for a closer look at the desperado, and then before anybody could stop him he gave a yell and started for the bad man at a 2:40 gait.

The bad man saw him coming and tried to climb over the courthouse, but the little drummer nabbed him and said something to him. The bad man ran his hand into his pocket and gave up something. Then the marshal and the police closed in, and the desperado went off with them as gentle as a lamb.

When the little drummer was questioned, he said: "Afraid? Not much. That fellow owed me $9. He was raised in the same town in Connecticut that I was, and I loaned it to him when he started for Texas 13 years ago. I generally collect what's owing me. Say, what were the cops afraid of him for?"—Detroit Free Press.

Cremation In England.

The report of the council of the Cremation Society of England for 1896 shows that 137 cremations were carried out at Woking during the year as compared with 150 in 1895. The decrease is not important, as the figures for 1896 still show a material advance on any previous year, 1895 excepted. The following table of the cremations at Woking from the commencement of operations will show the growing popularity of the disposal of bodies by incineration:

| | | | | | | | |
|------|------|------|------|------|------|------|------|
| 1889 | 1890 | 1891 | 1892 | 1893 | 1894 | 1895 | 1896 |
| 46 | 54 | 99 | 104 | 101 | 125 | 150 | 137 |

It has to be remembered that three crematories are now open in England and Scotland besides that belonging to the society at St. John's, near Woking—namely, at Manchester, where 52 cremations took place during 1896; at Glasgow, where there were 11 cremations, and at Liverpool, where 2 cremations have been performed.—Westminster Gazette.

A Hopeless Case.

Carlyle was terribly bored by the persistent optimism of his friend Emerson. "I thought," he said, "that I would try to cure him, so I took him to some of the lowest parts of London and showed him all that was going on there. This done, I turned to him, saying, 'And now, man, d'ye believe in the devil now?' 'Oh, no!' he replied. 'All these people seem to me only parts of the great machine, and on the whole I think they are doing their work very satisfactorily.' Then," continued the sage, "I took him down to the hoose o' commons, where they put us under the gallery. There I showed him 'ae chiel getting up after another and leeing and leeing.' Then I turned to him and said, 'And now, man, d'ye believe in the devil now?' He made me, however, just the same answer as before, and I then gave him up in despair."

Enlightened.

Tarry de Windt, the Siberian traveler took a number of woodcuts of the Andree polar balloon for distribution among the natives of northwestern Siberia. One day he noticed a Tchukchi studying one of the pictures intently and asked him what he would do if he saw it in the sky. "Shoot it," was the immediate reply.

A Pretty Resort.

A sojourn at Winona Assembly Grounds at Eagle Lake, Ind., near Warsaw, on the Fort Wayne route, will prove a pleasant summer outing. This delightful resort is the site of the youngest of the Chautauqua assemblies, and its attractions combine facilities for recreation, entertainment, instruction and devotion.

Eagle Lake is a beautiful sheet of water, surrounded by several hundred acres of romantic woodland which covers one stretch of nearly two miles. The lake affords opportunity for aquatic pastimes, the boating, bathing and fishing being excellent. In addition to numerous rowboats there are several pleasure steamers on the lake.

The shady grounds are occupied by many pretty cottages and summer homes of persons who annually enjoy the beauties of the place, strengthening body in the invigorating atmosphere and enriching the mind by the special advantages the summer school offers.

A fine park has been laid out on the shore of the lake. A large auditorium, amphitheatre, college halls, hotels and restaurant have also been constructed on the grounds for the accommodation of visitors. There is also a race track and space set aside for outdoor athletic sports.

In addition to the Presbyterian General Assembly which will be in session on the Assembly Grounds from May 20 to June 2, a number of other large meetings will be held on the grounds during the summer of 1897, including the Indiana State Sunday School Convention, Western Association of Writers, Indiana State W. C. T. U., Indiana Y. M. C. A., Encampment, National Medical Society, Boys' Brigade, and Indiana State Christian Endeavor Convention.

Excursion tickets to Eagle Lake will be on sale via Pennsylvania Lines during the summer season. Details regarding rates, time of trains, etc., may be ascertained by addressing the nearest passenger or ticket agent of the Pennsylvania lines, or by applying to F. Van Dusen, chief assistant general passenger agent, Pittsburg, Pa. Full information concerning the Assembly and Summer School, cost of entertainment, etc., may be secured upon application to Secretary Sol. C. Dickey, Eagle Lake, Ind. *

New Entrance to New York.

All are convenient locations; Cortlandt street and Desbrosses street, in the downtown district, and Twenty-third street in the uptown district. The latter entrance will be formally opened May 16, when two new, commodious ferryboats, double-deckers, constructed especially for the Pennsylvania lines and furnished and fitted in up-to-date style, will be placed in service between the Jersey City station and Twenty-third street, connecting with all inbound and outbound trains over the Pennsylvania system, the same as the boats running between that station and Cortlandt street and Desbrosses street, which will also continue in the service.

The Pennsylvania lines' three entrances into New York enable passengers to quickly reach the business portion in the lower end of the city, as well as the hotels and business blocks in the very heart of the great metropolis. The ride across the river is a delightful and refreshing termination to an enjoyable trip. All through trains from the west, over the Pennsylvania lines, land passengers in New York between 9:30 a. m., and 9:30 p. m., treating them to a grand view of the city's water front; its extensive docks where at almost any time may be seen ships of many nations. The wonderful panorama gives visitors a slight idea of the magnitude of New York. The new Twenty-third street ferry line is particularly noteworthy in this respect. *

Summer Outing.

The principal places of summer sojourn along the Atlantic ocean in the Alleghenies, the Adirondacks, Catskills, and mountains of the east, and in the lake region and Northern Michigan and the northwest, may be readily reached over the Pennsylvania lines.

Special information regarding the leading resorts and the advantages enjoyed in journeying to them over the Pennsylvania route has been compiled and printed in convenient form. The matter is profusely illustrated with photographic reproductions of seashore scenes and includes views at Atlantic City, Cape May, Long Branch and other resorts along the Atlantic coast; also of Cresson, Bedford Springs, and romantic mountain retreats, and of Petoskey, Mackinac, and the summer havens in Michigan and the northwest.

Persons contemplating summer outing trips will find it a valuable guide in shaping preliminaries. Copies may be obtained by addressing D. C. MacWaters, district passenger agent, Pittsburg, Pa.

A. W. SCOTT, Architect.

To my patrons, and those contemplating building, permit me to state: I have made plans and constructed the building for more than three times the number of any other one Architect in this country. During my nine years practice in this city, and in each case devoted careful study that I might not cause you to expend one dollar where it was not required, and yet give you a building free from cracked or settled walls, both interior and exterior, free from unsightly cast iron plates on the side of your building, or cumbersome "hog chains" extending down in your finish d rooms to support a roof, as some are in this city, constructed by those professing to know better. I guarantee you a saving in each building of many times what the plans cost you, and the most substantial of structures. We profit by other people's mistakes. We study. We are progressive. We put strength where it belongs. It was the unlearned and illiterate Egyptians who constructed their buildings with 9 to 14 foot thick walls, regardless of size of building, because their forefathers did the same. Science has taught practical architects that necessity demands practical economy. We are up-to-date on any style building you want. Make your blue print copies of your plans. Type written specifications. Duplicate or triplicate copies when desired. Make your neat sketches of all contemplated building, free of charge, as all first-class architects do. We charge you a reasonable compensation for our work, which we allow you to determine, while with some "half a loaf is better than none." Beware of the man who proposes to make your plans for nothing. Somebody's going to pay dear for them in the end. We are too busy to announce all the leading points on this subject. We are completing the 23d contract for plans since January, '97. Call and see me.

AN HEIR TO MILLIONS

Prof. O. S. Reed May Come Into a Vast Fortune.

THE MOTHER OF WASHINGTON

Was the Sister of the Reverend Gentleman's Ancestor, and the Estate is the Accumulated Wealth of the Famous Ball Family—The Claimants May Soon Have Their Own.

Prof. O. S. Reed, pastor of the Christian church, is a gentleman who seldom talks of his private affairs, but he acknowledged when questioned by a NEWS REVIEW man that he is a descendant of the Ball family of Virginia, and as such is heir to many millions of dollars invested in valuable property in Philadelphia, Baltimore and the Old Dominion.

The story is a long one, and dates back to almost a century and a half ago when the Ball family was among the most famous of all Virginia. They were wealthy as wealthy people were counted in that day, and invested their money in real estate in the principal cities of the east. They did not dispose of their land outright, but having the greatest of faith in the future of the country, and knowing that the eastern coast would within the century support a population of millions they leased the property for various terms of years. When the investments were first made family records show that the leases were of short duration. So well were they recompensed that in later life they decided to extend the leases that their children and their children's children might derive some benefit from the sagacity and business sense of their ancestors. People were easily found who wanted to buy, and when they could not buy were willing to lease. As the Balls were determined and a great part of the property even at that time was valuable they experienced no difficulty in leasing the land for a period of 99 years. The papers were duly made out, and there is every reason to believe that the transactions were formally and legally executed. Not all the land has remained in the possession of the lessees and their descendants, some of it having been sold time and time again, but without a clear title since the lease stood between the purchaser and undisputed possession.

Several years ago some of the Ball family decided the time had come for action since the time of the leases would expire this year. They looked into the matter carefully, and committees were appointed to locate the land and secure information concerning its value. A number of heirs became deeply interested in the project, and have made such progress that the claim seems well established. There are about 70 heirs, and the property is valued at an amount sufficient to give each one something more than a million after deducting the enormous expenses required to conduct the litigation before they can hope to come into their own.

Strange as it may seem Professor Reed is not the only claimant in this county. Salem having one in the person of Nathan L. Ball, a prominent resident of that place. He is deeply interested in the matter, and has taken an active interest in establishing the proofs so far obtained. He believes the heirs have affairs so arranged that their efforts will be crowned with success.

Professor Reed has known of the estate for many years having heard of it from his mother who was always interested. It is from her side of the house he obtains his claim. The reverend gentleman is a direct descendant of a brother of the mother of George Washington, and can trace the matter without interruption through all the generations. The prospects of some day enjoying an enormous fortune are not new to him, but that he has not depended on it for his way in life is easily shown by the splendid position he holds in the ministry of his church.

Only Frightened.

Saturday evening while the streets were crowded a young lady, in passing the Hotel Grand, stepped in one of the basement window openings in the Sixth street side of the building, and was pitched headlong to the pavement. She was assisted to her feet by a young man, and it was found she was more frightened than injured.

Gates Repaired.

The gates at the Second street crossing are being repaired today. They have been out of order since Friday. Meantime the watchman has had to stand at the crossing with a white flag.

HENRY IRVING AS A JOKER.

He and Toole Made a Topsy Turvy Repent Temporarily.

Sir Henry Irving tells an amusing story of a joke that he, with Mr. Toole and a third party, played some years ago at a Glasgow hotel. After their work they were supping at the hotel, where, says Sir Henry, "there was in the room a high screen. The instant the waiter was gone we commenced operations. We stripped the silverware, of which there was a tolerable supply, from the table and placed it behind the screen. We then opened the window and turned out the gas, and finally all got under the table. We had only to remain in our cramped position a few minutes before we heard the unsteady feet of our friend, the waiter, along the passage.

"The darkened room amazed him and the cold air from the window seemed to strike him with affright. "Goodness!" exclaimed he, "it's thieves they are. A thocht as much frae the luiks o' them, and frae their gay talk and their laughter. Eh, but I'm a ruined man. A wish a' had nae taen the hale o' that last bottle. Hear! Hear! Thieves! Thieves! Murder! Thieves! Thieves!" and shouting at the top of his voice he ran out of the room and along the passage.

"The minute he had gone we shut the door, lit the gas, restored the silver to the table and sat round as before, enjoying a quiet cigar. Presently there was a confused murmur along the passage. It grew louder and louder, and in poured a truly motley throng, mostly half dressed, consisting of the manager, two men in bare legs and slippers, and a lady with a blanket, in the alarm of fear caught up, followed by our agonized friend, the waiter. One man was armed with a poker and the other carried a bronze statuette ready to hurl at the thief. As they entered we all sat back and looked at them in well feigned amazement, and Toole said to the astonished and bewildered manager, 'Do you always come in this way with your friends when a gentleman asks for his bill?'—London Telegraph.

THE MAKING OF POISON.

A Factory Where the Most Deadly Drugs Are Prepared.

In London is a strange establishment, behind a wilderness of warehouses and tumbledown tenements, in a remote suburb. Its massive gates are locked and jealously guarded. A visitor must not only be careful where he steps and refrain from touching, he must also breathe with great caution. One of the terrible poisons manufactured here is pure anhydrous acid, a drug seldom seen outside a chemical laboratory. This is the deadliest of all known poisons. The discoverer was stricken dead from inhaling its fumes. From 3 to 5 per cent of this chemical added to 95 or 97 parts of water makes prussic acid. This diluted poison causes instant death, even when taken in minute quantities.

Next to anhydrous acid, the worst poison they make is cyanide of potassium. Last year they turned out over 1,000 tons of it. Five grains being a fatal dose, the annual output would be sufficient to kill 2,500,000 people. In the workroom, where men are gathered around a witch's caldron containing over a hundred weight of molten cyanide, a strange picture is presented. The seething mass of white hot liquid poison, with the lambent play of the furnace fires, the phantom faces of the workmen, enveloped in an uncanny looking glass mask, peering into the heart of the dreadful mixture through the thick atmosphere, are a terrible sight. In another room, where are tons of the finished product, looking like crystallized sugar, "good enough to eat," one man is never allowed alone. For some inexplicable reason it exercises a strange fascination for the men who inhale its fumes. They are haunted by a desire to eat it. But, knowing that satisfying the craving means instant death, most, but not all, are able to resist it. Aside from this fascination its manufacture is not considered unhealthy. The same cannot be said of corrosive sublimate. Its fumes are deadly.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

His Bonus.

They were just closing up the real estate deal, and the man who always wanted something thrown in to make a good bargain appeared to hesitate. "What'll you throw in?" "What'll I what?" "What'll you throw in as a sort of bonus?" "Oh, yes, yes, of course!" said the real estate man. "How stupid of me! Why, the fact is, in our line of business we are not exactly in the habit of giving prizes, but, in this case, just to make it binding, I don't mind throwing in the back taxes."

"Now you're talking business!" exclaimed the would be purchaser. "It always pays for a man to stick out for his rights."

How Grant Saved Two Nations From War.

Hon. John Russell Young, a former United States minister to China, regards General Grant's part in arranging a treaty of peace between China and Japan as one of the shining achievements of his career. Writing of "When

Grant Went Round the World" in The Ladies' Home Journal, Mr. Young says Prince Kung, then a sort of regent for China, in his conversations at Peking with General Grant, talked with earnestness upon the relations between China and Japan. This led to a message from the prince to the mikado, an extraordinary incident little known in the histories, and the whole business in time to be so managed by the general that war between the two nations was postponed. "At Nikko, Japan, General Grant met the Japanese ministers, who came by the mikado's command, to discuss with him the message he had brought from Prince Kung and Li Hung Chang. Count Ito, secretary of the interior; Count Saigo, the minister of war; Count Inouye, foreign minister, and Mr. Yoshida, the Japanese envoy to Washington, composed the embassy. They sat in a little temple (the afternoon sultry, a thunder storm rattling among the hills) and discussed the issues. In the end was a letter addressed to Prince Kung and the Japanese prime minister, containing suggestions which were accepted by both governments. It was a basis of peace not to be broken for many years. So it will be seen that there were useful days, as well as days of pageantry, in Japan. General Grant in time became not alone the friend but the companion of the mikado and his counselors."

Wouldn't Be Stood Off.

There was a bold, bad man making things hot in a Texas town a few days ago. He wore long hair, a deerskin hunting suit, a big sombrero, and he was waving a small firepiece in his hand and yelling for somebody to wade in and get pulverized.

He had his back against the courthouse, and the city marshal and the police argued with him from the middle of the street and dodged every time he swung his howitzer in their direction. Lots of citizens had turned out to witness the performance, and it looked for awhile as if the bad man had the whole town against the ropes.

Presently a little, weak kneed drummer from Connecticut, who was among the crowd, adjusted his spectacles for a closer look at the desperado, and then before anybody could stop him he gave a yell and started for the bad man at a 2:40 gait.

The bad man saw him coming and tried to climb over the courthouse, but the little drummer nabbed him and said something to him. The bad man ran his hand into his pocket and gave up some things. Then the marshal and the police closed in, and the desperado went off with them as gentle as a lamb.

When the little drummer was questioned, he said: "Afraid? Not much. That fellow owed me $9. He was raised in the same town in Connecticut that I was, and I loaned it to him when he started for Texas 13 years ago. I generally collect what's owing me. Say, what were the cops afraid of him for?"—Detroit Free Press.

Cremation in England.

The report of the Council of the Cremation Society of England for 1896 shows that 137 cremations were carried out at Woking during the year as compared with 150 in 1895. The decrease is not important, as the figures for 1896 still show a material advance on any previous year, 1895 excepted. The following table of the cremations at Woking from the commencement of operations will show the growing popularity of the disposal of bodies by incineration:

| | | | | | | | |
|------|------|------|------|------|------|------|------|
| 1889 | 1890 | 1891 | 1892 | 1893 | 1894 | 1895 | 1896 |
| 46 | 54 | 99 | 104 | 101 | 125 | 150 | 137 |

It has to be remembered that three crematories are now open in England and Scotland besides that belonging to the society at St. John's, near Woking—namely, at Manchester, where 52 cremations took place during 1896; at Glasgow, where there were 11 cremations, and at Liverpool, where 2 cremations have been performed.—Westminster Gazette.

A Hopeless Case.

Carlyle was terribly bored by the persistent optimism of his friend Emerson. "I thought," he said, "that I would try to cure him, so I took him to some of the lowest parts of London and showed him all that was going on there. This done, I turned to him, saying, 'And now, man, d'ye believe in the devil now?' 'Oh, no!' he replied. 'All these people seem to me only parts of the great machine, and on the whole I think they are doing their work very satisfactorily.' Then," continued the sage, "I took him down to the hoose o' commons, where they put us under the gallery. There I showed him 'ae chiel getting up after another and leeing and leeing.' Then I turned to him and said, 'And now, man, d'ye believe in the devil now?' He made me, however, just the same answer as before, and I then gave him up in despair."

Enlightened.

Tarry de Wint, the Siberian traveler took a number of woodcuts of the Andree polar balloon for distribution among the natives of northwestern Siberia. One day he noticed a Tchukchi studying one of the pictures intently and asked him what he would do if he saw it in the sky. "Shoot it," was the immediate reply.

A Pretty Resort.

A sojourn at Winona Assembly Grounds at Eagle Lake, Ind., near Warsaw, on the Fort Wayne route, will prove a pleasant summer outing. This delightful resort is the site of the young-est of the Chautauqua assemblies, and its attractions combine facilities for recreation, entertainment, instruction and devotion.

Eagle Lake is a beautiful sheet of water, surrounded by several hundred acres of romantic woodland which covers one stretch of nearly two miles. The lake affords opportunity for aquatic pastimes, the boating, bathing and fishing being excellent. In addition to numerous row-boats there are several pleasure steamers on the lake.

The shady grounds are occupied by many pretty cottages and summer homes of persons who annually enjoy the beauties of the place, strengthening body in the invigorating atmosphere and enriching the mind by the special advantages the summer school offers.

A fine park has been laid out on the shore of the lake. A large auditorium, amphitheatre, college halls, hotels and restaurant have also been constructed on the grounds for the accommodation of visitors. There is also a race track and space set aside for out-door athletic sports.

In addition to the Presbyterian General Assembly which will be in session on the Assembly Grounds from May 20 to June 2, a number of other large meetings will be held on the grounds during the summer of 1897, including the Indiana State Sunday School Convention, Western Association of Writers, Indiana State W. C. T. U., Indiana Y. M. C. A., Encampment, National Medical Society, Boys' Brigade, and Indiana Excursion tickets to Eagle Lake will be on sale via Pennsylvania Lines during the summer season. Details regarding rates, time of trains, etc., may be ascertained by addressing the nearest passenger or ticket agent of the Pennsylvania lines, or by applying to F. Van Dusen, chief assistant general passenger agent, Pittsburg, Pa. Full information concerning the Assembly and Summer School, cost of entertainment, etc., may be secured upon application to Secretary Sol. C. Dickey, Eagle Lake, Ind.

New Entrance to New York.

All are convenient locations; Cortlandt street and Desbrosses street, in the downtown district, and Twenty-third street in the uptown district. The latter entrance will be formally opened May 16, when two new, commodious ferryboats, double-deckers, constructed especially for the Pennsylvania lines and furnished and fitted in up-to-date style, will be placed in service between the Jersey City station and Twenty-third street, connecting with all inbound and outbound trains over the Pennsylvania system, the same as the boats running between that station and Cortlandt street and Desbrosses street, which will also continue in the service.

The Pennsylvania lines' three entrances into New York enable passengers to quickly reach the business portion in the lower end of the city, as well as the hotels and business blocks in the very heart of the great metropolis. The ride across the river is a delightful and refreshing termination to an enjoyable trip. All through trains from the west, over the Pennsylvania lines, land passengers in New York between 9:30 a. m., and 9:30 p. m., treating them to a grand view of the city's water front; its extensive docks where at almost any time may be seen ships of many nations. The wonderful panorama gives visitors a slight idea of the magnitude of New York. The new Twenty-third street ferry line is particularly noteworthy in this respect.

Summer Outing.

The principal places of summer sojourn along the Atlantic ocean in the Alleghenies, the Adirondacks, Catskills, and mountains of the east, and in the lake region and Northern Michigan and the northwest, may be readily reached over the Pennsylvania lines.

Special information regarding the leading resorts and the advantages enjoyed in journeying to them over the Pennsylvania route has been compiled and printed in convenient form. The matter is profusely illustrated with photographic reproductions of seashore scenes and includes views at Atlantic City, Cape May, Long Branch and other resorts along the Atlantic coast; also of Cresson, Bedford Springs, and Potomac mountain retreats, and of Petoskey, Mackinac, and the summer havens in Michigan and the northwest.

Persons contemplating summer outing trips will find it a valuable guide in shaping preliminaries. Copies may be obtained by addressing D. C. MacWaters, district passenger agent, Pittsburg, Pa.

A. W. SCOTT, Architect.

To my patrons, and those contemplating building, permit me to state: I have made plans and constructed the building for more than three times the number of any other one Architect in this city, during my nine years practice in this city, and in each case devoted careful study that I might not only spend one dollar where it was not required, and yet give you a building free from cracked or settled walls, both interior and exterior, free from unsightly stains or blemishes on the side of your building, or cumbersome "hog chains" extending down to your finish d rooms to support a roof, as some are in this city, constructed by those professing to know better. I guarantee you a saving in each building of many times what the plans cost you, and the most substantial of structures. We profit by other people's mistakes. We study. We are progressive. We put strength where it belongs. It was the unchangeable and immutable Egyptians who constructed their buildings with 9 to 14 foot thick walls, regardless of size of building, because their forefathers did the same. Science has taught practical architects that necessity demands practical economy. We are up to date on any style building you want. Make you blue print copies of your plans. Type written specifications. Duplicate or triplicate copies, when desired. Make you neat sketches of all contemplated building, free of charge, as all first class architects do. Free of charge, as a reasonable compensation for our work, which we allow you to determine, while with some architects you are better than none. Beware of the man who proposes to make your plans for nothing. Somebody's going to pay dear for them in the end. We are too busy to announce all the leading points on this subject. We are completing the 23d contract for plans since January, '97. Call and see me. A. W. SCOTT, Architect, Foutts Bldg.

The News Review of East Liverpool,

THE CHIN AS AN INDEX.

Can You Tell a Person's Character by the Shape of His Lower Jaw?

I have read Dr. Leuf's letter on "Physiognomy" in The Medical Council and am prompted to say, in reply to his request for contributions on the "chin:"

Protruding chins characterize men and women of the get there type. Successful people usually carry their chins thrust forward, with compressed lips. This chin, if heavy, with broad rami and swelling masseters, indicates fighting blood.

A retreating chin shows lack of force, mentally, morally and physically; usually of the yielding sort; soon discouraged; desires protection; small executive force. The development of other faculties often makes up for this defect.

A small, well rounded chin, with mobile and red cushion of flesh upon, indicates a pleasure loving owner. If dimpled, all the more so, for dimpled chins belong to coquettes. People with dimples love to be petted and loved; like admiration and praise. Generally fickle. Usually this chin is healthy, recuperative and long lived.

Broad chins signify nobleness and large dignity, unless vertically thin, when, if with it there be thin lips of bloodless kind, you find cruelty.

Square chins with little flesh denote firmness and executive ability. These make good haters.

Drunkards usually have a circular line about their chins.

Slovens have wrinkles about their chins.

Long, thin chins are poetical, unstable and delicate in constitution. Such people are subject to bowel derangements. If thin through the angles of the mouth, too, they are prone to tuberculosis. Generally short lived.

Medium chins with a suggestive bifurcation in the center, with small mounds of flesh on either side, characterize generosity, impulsiveness, cheery natures. (The same sized chins, with a dab of flesh just under the center of the lower lip, indicate meanness, selfishness, brutality.)

N. B.—No one feature can be taken in judging character. Often development of other faculties of mind or feature entirely governs. In each case take the "totality of indications" before judging.—St. Louis Clinique.

ROBERT BURNS.

The Poet's First Love and the Verses in Which He Praised Her.

Robert Burns, the Scottish poet, was born at Mount Oliphant, Jan. 25, 1759, near Ayr, in a clay built cottage, reared by his father's own hands. When a lad of 18, the family moved to Lochlea. His first three or four years at Lochlea were still with the poet times of innocence, and "his conduct was governed by the strictest rules of virtue and modesty." At last he set his affections on a young woman named Ellison Begbie, the daughter of a small farmer, and asked her to be his wife, but he could not prevail on her to marry him, and this disappointment had a malign influence over the poet. Long afterward, when he had seen much of the world, Burns spoke of this girl as, of all those on whom he ever fixed his fickle affections, the one most likely to have made a pleasant partner for life. It was to her he addressed the pure and beautiful love lyric "Mary Morison," and in these lines the lyric genius of Burns was for the first time undeniably revealed:

Yestreen when to the trembling string
The dance gaed through the lighted ha',
To thee my fancy took its wing,
I sat, but neither heard nor saw,
Though this was fair and that was braw
And yon the toast of a' the town.
I sighed and said among them a',
"Ye are nae Mary Morison."

Oh, Mary, canst thou wreck his peace
Wha for thy sake would gladly dee?
Or canst thou break that heart of his
Whase only fault is loving thee?
If love for love thou wilt not gie,
At least be pity to me shown.
A thought ungentle canna be
The thought of Mary Morison.

Diet and Hair.

The relation of the diet to the hair has been tested by good authority. A diet consisting of beef, starchy materials and milk causes atrophy of the roots and falling of the hair. Probably no article of diet nourishes the hair so well as oats. A bald headed Scotchman who takes his porridge regularly is a rarity. The poorest diet for the hair is milk. It is claimed that the loss of hair as the result of fever is largely due to the habit of feeding the patient almost exclusively on milk diet, and it will be interesting to note the cases where those having fine heads of hair are known to live principally upon vegetable and grain foods.

The News Review of East Liverpool,

THE CHIN AS AN INDEX.

Can You Tell a Person's Character by the Shape of His Lower Jaw?

I have read Dr. Leuf's letter on "Physiognomy" in The Medical Council and am prompted to say, in reply to his request for contributions on the "chin."

Protruding chins characterize men and women of the get there type. Successful people usually carry their chins thrust forward, with compressed lips. This chin, if heavy, with broad rami and swelling masseters, indicates fighting blood.

A retreating chin shows lack of force, mentally, morally and physically; usually of the yielding sort; soon discouraged; desires protection; small executive force. The development of other faculties often makes up for this defect.

A small, well rounded chin, with mobile and red cushion of flesh upon, indicates a pleasure loving owner. If dimpled, all the more so, for dimpled chins belong to coquettes. People with dimples love to be petted and loved; like admiration and praise. Generally fickle. Usually this chin is healthy, recuperative and long lived.

Broad chins signify nobleness and large dignity, unless vertically thin, when, if with it there be thin lips of bloodless kind, you find cruelty.

Square chins with little flesh denote firmness and executive ability. These make good haters.

Drunkards usually have a circular line about their chins.

Slovens have wrinkles about their chins.

Long, thin chins are poetical, unstable and delicate in constitution. Such people are subject to bowel derangements. If thin through the angles of the mouth, too, they are prone to tuberculosis. Generally short lived.
